SALIPUR AUTONOMOUS COLLEGE, SALIPUR
REPORT ON
ORIENTATION PROGRAMME TITLED
"COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT AND SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITIES"

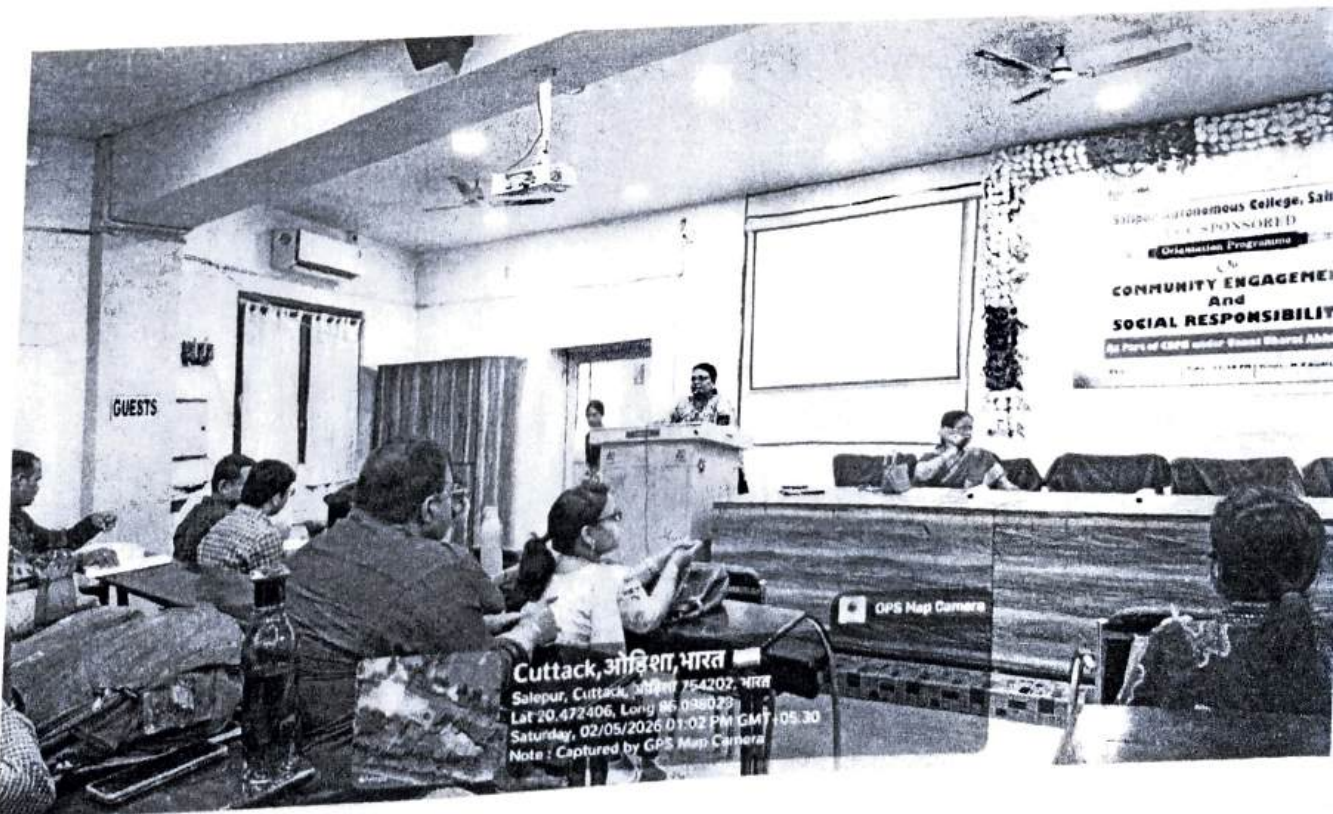

An orientation programme on the topic "Community Engagement and Social Responsibilities" as part of CBPR (Community Based Participatory Research) under UNNAT BHARAT ABHIYAN Conducted by Salipur Autonomous College in collaboration with UGC Cell. The primary objective of the programme was to sensitize faculties and students about their roles and responsibilities towards society as an important stakeholder of higher educational institutions. It aimed to promote awareness about community engagement and inspire faculties and students to actively participate in social development initiatives.

Objectives of the Programme

- To create awareness about the concept of community engagement
- To develop a sense of social responsibility among students and faculties
- To encourage participation in community engagement initiatives
- To provide an understanding of real-life community issues

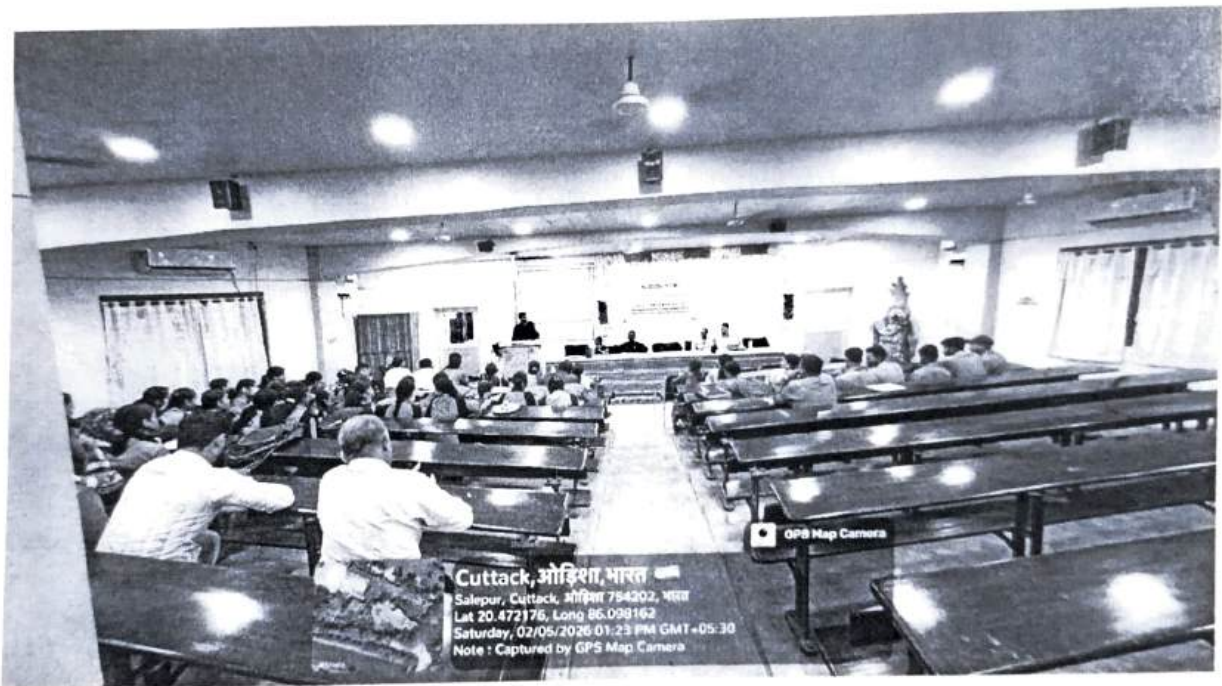

The programme commenced with the lighting of the ceremonial lamp by the distinguished guests. This was followed by a welcome address by Dr. Manisha Tripathi, UGC Coordinator, Salipur Autonomous College, Salipur, who emphasized the importance of bridging academic learning with societal needs.

Mr. Nityasundar Mishra, Lecturer in Political Science at Salipur Autonomous College, delivered an insightful lecture on community engagement, highlighting how individuals can contribute to society through small yet meaningful actions. He emphasized that respondents in fieldwork are not merely sources of data collection but should be treated as co-researchers, whose knowledge and experiences are equally valuable in the research process.

He also stressed the importance of local and actionable knowledge, making special reference to Tulasi Gowda, who is widely known as the "Encyclopaedia of the Forest" for her extensive understanding of plants and environmental conservation.

Furthermore, he discussed key principles and tools of community engagement. He explained the concept of transect walks, which involve studying the ground realities of village life directly. He highlighted the use of timelines to record historical events in a chronological manner, such as the establishment of temples, schools, and other infrastructures. He also elaborated on resource mapping, which includes identifying natural and physical resources like ponds and water reservoirs, and social mapping, which helps in understanding the composition of the community, including the distribution of women and men headed households, disadvantaged or advantaged households, caste and class dynamics, etc.

Mr. Bedabyas Bhanja, Lecturer in Philosophy, discussed the methods and ethical dimensions of community engagement, emphasizing core values such as honesty, transparency, openness, and accountability. He highlighted the importance of respecting local culture while engaging with communities, as it helps in building trust and mutual understanding.

He stressed the need to build strong and respectful relationships with villagers, ensuring that interactions are based on trust and cooperation. He also warned against any form of exploitation, emphasizing that there should be no manipulation or use of unethical questions during fieldwork. Researchers should openly share all relevant information with respondents, including how the data will be used and any potential risks involved.

Furthermore, he underlined the importance of obtaining informed consent before collecting any information. He emphasized that there should be no discrimination or bias in the research process, and all individuals must be treated equally. He also pointed out that researchers should share the outcomes of their work with the community, ensuring transparency and inclusivity. Lastly, he highlighted the need to respect the privacy and autonomy of the respondents throughout the process of community engagement.

Mr. Rindon Kundu, Assistant Professor in English, Sri Sri University, enriched the session by presenting real-life examples of community engagement, with special reference to the silver filigree tradition

Key Topics Discussed

- Meaning and significance of community engagement
- Role of HEIs in social transformation
- Importance of empathy, cooperation, and civic responsibility
- Case studies of successful community initiatives

The programme also included interactive discussions and question-answer sessions, which enhanced student participation and engagement

Outcomes of the Programme

The programme was successful in:

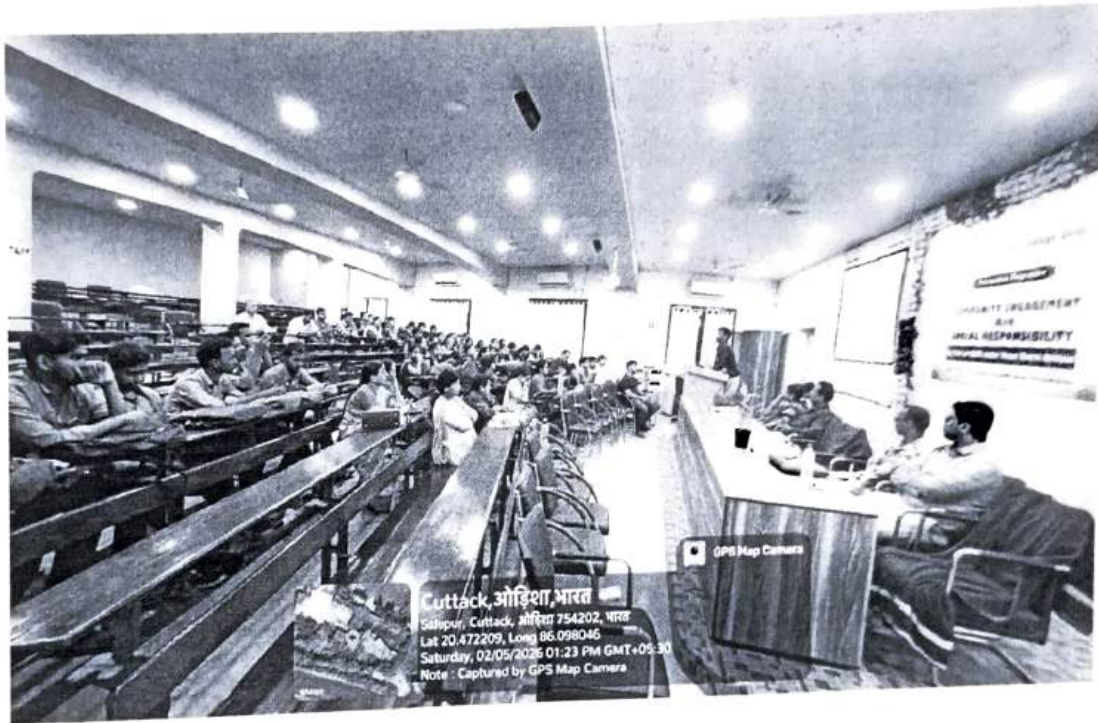

- Enhancing faculties and students' awareness of social responsibilities
- Motivating students to participate in community-based activities
- Providing practical insights into social work
- Encouraging critical thinking on contemporary social issues faced by communities

Vote of Thanks

The programme concluded with a vote of thanks delivered by Miss Rasmita Nayak, Lecturer in Political Science. She expressed sincere gratitude to the esteemed guests, organizers, participants, programme coordinator Miss Aryaputri Stithapragyn, Lecturer in English and audience for their valuable contributions in making the programme a grand success.

Conclusion

The orientation programme proved to be highly informative and inspiring. It successfully instilled a sense of responsibility and encouraged students to actively engage in community service, thereby contributing to the betterment of society.
